

Strategic Thinking: Getting to Where You Want to Be

How would you like to improve the chances of achieving your objectives at work and in your personal life?

At work, you usually plan without sufficient data and sometimes without clear objectives. At home, you plan mostly for the short-term without any idea whether the plan will affect you in the long-term.

How do you make sure that your decision or plan will get you to your target? The answer lies in Strategic Thinking.

What you need to succeed consistently is to develop a strategic thinking mind-set that will help you plan strategically. This will increase the success rate of reaching your target.

Learn how to strengthen your strategic thinking skills at this workshop. Through case studies and practical thinking exercises, you will improve your strategic thinking, learn to recognise patterns that impact strategy, and get you to where you want to be.

How you will benefit

By the end of the workshop, you will be able to:

- Use the Strategic Thinking processes to achieve better results
- Generate ideas and evaluate future scenarios
- Create short-term goals that support long-term goals
- Use strategic thinking to achieve your career and life goals

What you will learn
